- (c) Folish Youth Union (Zwiazek Mlodzierzy Polskis ZMF). This movement solicited members from the ranks of children of grammar school age and older up to the age of 18. If they were in the select group and were between 16 and 18, they were approached and asked to sign up as Party candidates. As an added inducement, candidates were offered the privilege of attending an NCO school and obtaining an NCO rating before they were called up for military service. ZMP members had no uniforms; they attended weekly political meetings and, having been indoctrinated in the Polish Communist Party and government policies, they, as a pro-Regime group, made up a significant percentage of the
- (d) Scouts (Harcerstwo). Throughout Poland there were scout clubs which catered to youths in the seven to 15-year age group. Parents had to provide a greenish-OD uniform with red braid in the upper left area of the shirt.

(e) University Clubs (Zwiazek Szkolne).

there was usually a United Polish workers' Farty (Folska Zjednoczona Partja Robotnicza - PZPR)

secretary on the University's board of governors. This secretary was instrumental in organizing university clubs, which directed, or were organized with the aim of directing, the thinking of university students along Party lines. These clubs were to serve as guides in influencing the students politically and in convincing them to join the Party.
